RUSH — TIME DATED ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED

Several UCSF faculty members will describe the latest advances in diagnosis and treatment of cardiovascular diseases during the 51st annual Physicians' Postgraduate Symposium on Cardiovascular Diseases, presented by the American Heart Association, S.F. Chapter, to be held Thursday and Friday, October 15 and 16 at the San Franciscan Hotel, 1231 Market St., S.F. Civic Center.

On Thursday, Melvin M. Scheinman, professor, Medicine, will lecture on "Newer Techniques for Treatment of Tachyarrythmia." Workshops will be presented by Kanu Chatterjee, the Lucie Stern Professor of Cardiology and professor, Medicine, "Bedside Diagnosis of Cardiac Disorders"; Carry Massie, assistant professor, Medicine, "Noninvasive Approaches to the Evaluation of Coronary Artery Disease"; Martin J. Lipton, associate professor, Radiology and Medicine, "Computed Tomography of the Cardiovascular System" and Lester B. Jacobson, associate Clinical professor, Medicine, "Ambulatory Monitoring."

On Friday, Thomas A. Ports, assistant professor, Medicine and Cardiology, will lecture on "Transluminal Angioplasty." In addition workshops will be led by Bruce Brundage, associate professor, Medicine, "Coronary Arteriography"; Ruey J. Sung, associate professor, Medicine, "Antiarrythmic Therapy"; and Ralph D. Clark, assistant clinical professor, Medicine, "Echocardiographic Case Studies."

Robert Derzon, former director of UCSF Hospitals and Clinics, and vice president of Lewin and Associates, a public policy research and management consulting firm in Washington, D.C., will be the luncheon speaker on Thursday.

For registration information contact Kari Olila at 433-2273.

The Canadian mail strike is over. The Canadian Post Office has resumed express mail service, first class and priority mail service, however delays of several weeks can be expected for priority and first class mail deliveries due to a large backlog.

For further information contact Jon Gledhill at x1124 or x5976.

Volunteers are needed for a UCSF study to develop a vaccine for poison oak and poison ivy. Families in which both parents are sensitive to oak and ivy plants and who have two children, not yet sensitized, between the ages of 5 and 8 are needed.

Initiated by William L. Epstein, professor and chairman of Dermatology, the study will determine if children can be given intramuscular injections of small amounts of urushiol in olive oil to induce a state of tolerance to urushiol, the chemical in poison oak and poison ivy plants that produces the skin reaction.

Parents who meet the stated qualifications, who would like to have their children volunteer, and who plan to remain in the Bay Area for the next five years, should call x2545.

Overweight teens, ages 15 to 19, are encouraged to register now in "Shapedown," a program designed to help teenagers develop new exercise and eating habits.

Sponsored by the UCSF Adolescent Medicine Unit, the classes will meet from 4 to 5:30 p.m. beginning Wednesday, September 23, and continue for the next 12 weeks.

The emphasis is on helping participants alter their weight by taking charge of their own behavior and learning to deal effectively with common teenage habits like night binges and constant dieting.

In addition to the "Shapedown" classes on campus, programs also are scheduled in South San Francisco and Marin County.

Laurel Mellin, a nutritionist in the Adolescent Medicine Unit, is coordinator of the program. For further information contact Lesley Yu at x2184.

Vol. 7, No. 15, September 5-18, 1981

TODAY & TOMORROW

Closing of the Bay Area Regional Poison Control Center at SFGH for lack of funding was averted by a last minute pledge of financial support from S.F. Public Health Director Mervyn Silverman.

Jere Goyan, dean of the School of Pharmacy, had announced that the facility exhausted every conceivable source of funding, right down to the sale of T-shirts by students and staff.

Goyan said that UCSF was mandated to fund only the center's teaching programs, but had subsidized about 45 percent of the total services which amounted to a quarter of a million dollars since the center opened.

Established in February 1979 by the schools of Pharmacy and Medicine, in cooperation with the S.F. Department of Public Health, the center is staffed around the clock by UCSF pharmacists and takes about 25,000 calls a year on its telephone hotline, based at the SFGH Emergency Room. The Poison Center staff was involved in both the South San Francisco and PG & E toxic accidents last month and received 400 calls in one day on the Financial District PCB problem.

The Center provides poison information, treatment and referral assistance to approximately four-and-a-half million Northern Californians living in San Francisco, Marin, San Mateo, Alameda, Contra Costa, Mendocino, Del Norte, Humboldt, Lake, Napa and Solano counties.

A new emergency alarm system has been installed on each floor of the parking garages of Millberry Union and the Ambulatory Care Center.

The system is located on specially painted yellow columns and at each elevator foyer. Each alarm is marked with a large red and white sign.

To operate, the caller must push the button and a police dispatcher will answer. The caller then can describe the nature of the emergency. Police officers will be dispatched to the location simultaneously.

Installation of the new alarm system is in response to a recommendation made by the Chancellor's Emergency Task Force on Personal Safety. For further information call x1414.

UCSF's Retirees' Employment Program has been expanded from the School of Medicine to include the entire campus.

The program, started last year, is coordinated by Faracita Wyatt, and provides jobs at a regular UC salary for retired persons including those from UC.

More than 70 retirees and a total of 23 departments including Pediatrics, Orthopaedic Surgery and Cancer Research are now involved in this program, the only one of its kind in the UC system.

Department managers and supervisors who would like to take advantage of a retired person's expertise should call x2715, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Thursdays, 1 to 4 p.m., or leave a message in the Personnel Office, x1645.

Bay Area commuters now can use one ticket for unlimited rides on AC Transit and the Muni. The pass is part of a new program begun on September 1, to encourage intersystem transit use.

The monthly pass costs from $50 to $68 depending on where the user lives and is $2 less than the combined price of each system's monthly pass. Passes are being sold at the AC Transit ticket counter in the TransBay Terminal.

A tri-system pass that also will work in BART's collection system is expected to be available sometime in 1982 according to transit officials.

Norman Kretchmer, director of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development since 1974, has accepted a dual appointment with UCSF and UC-Berkeley. He has been appointed professor of Obstetrics and Pediatrics at UCSF, will organize and administer a clinical nutrition research center at SFGH, and will be professor of Nutritional Sciences at UC-Berkeley. He is scheduled to arrive September 10.

Prior to heading NICHD, Kretchmer had been the Harold K. Faber Professor of Pediatrics and chair of the program in Human Biology at Stanford, where he served in varying positions and hospital staffs since 1959.

A native of New York City, he received his PhD from the University of Minnesota in 1947 and his MD from SUNY College of Medicine in 1952. He also received honorary degrees from the Medical College of Ohio at Toledo and from the University of Bern in Switzerland.

Three UCSF faculty members were interviewed for an upcoming KQED documentary on the economics of health care. Philip Lee, professor, Social Medicine; Benson Roe, professor, Surgery; and Steve Schroeder, associate professor, Medicine and Health Policy Program, talked with reporter Bill Skane about the problem of the high cost of getting well.

The show will air on KQED, Channel 9, Friday, September 11 at 9 p.m.; KQEC, Channel 32, Sunday, September 13 at 7 p.m.; and on KQED, Channel 9, Tuesday, September 15 at 8 p.m.
